

Biogas workshop success for Clarke Energy France

The unusual setting of a ferry between Marseille and Ajaccio in Corsica hosted the first Biogas Workshop hosted by Clarke Energy France and GE Jenbacher. The "Napoleon Bonaparte" ferry departed with more than 50 guests to discuss and debate Clarke Energy and GE Jenbacher's products and experience in various biogas applications.

A variety of sessions with different biogas specialists from GE Jenbacher and Clarke Energy encourage lively discussions both inside and outside the conference room. An additional mini cruise to the natural reserve of Scandola gave everyone the opportunity to develop fruitful exchanges whilst admiring the stunning landscape that forms the 'Island of Beauty'.

The 2½ day event was received positively by all concerned and preparations for the next conference are already underway. Clarke Energy France would like to thank everyone who attended and would welcome enquiries or suggestions for future workshops covering gas powered generation.

Clients and future customers participated in the Biogas workshop aboard the "Napoleon Bonaparte"
